BODIES OF 60,000 BURNED AT TOKIO

Casualties at Yokohama Now
Estimated at 110,000.

OFFICIAL DISPATCH RECEIVED

Number of Earthquake Victims in the Devastated Area Still Unfound Very Great, the Message to the Japanese Embassy at Washington Says. Property Damage Enormous, but Not Yet Determined.

Washington, Sept. 12.—Casualties in Yokohama are now estimated at 110,000, or one-quarter of the entire population, while in Tokio the authorities up to the night of Sept. 8 had incinerated the bodies of 60,000 fire and earthquake victims, according to an official dispatch to the Japanese embassy here.

Following the first shock on Sept. 1, there were 1,319 separate shocks recorded up to 6 o'clock on the morning of Sept. 6, the dispatch states, adding:

"The population of the whole affected area is 6,000,000. The property damage, which, of course, is immense, is not yet determined or estimated. "An official investigation by the ministry for foreign affairs shows that in Yokohama of 3,000 foreign residents 100 killed, including 50 British and 20 Americans. Of the survivors, only nine remained ashore, most of the others having gone to Kobe aboard the Empress Australia and the Andre Lebon, some others remaining on board the steamers Ambrose and Empress of Canada, including the staffs of foreign embassies, legations and consulates, which are directing the work for the relief of their nations. The government is co-operating in the matter of communications and transportation."

"The Tokio prefectural government is guarding the property of the foreigners at Yokohama, collecting the dead and taking all possible measures of salvage."

"Up to midnight Sept. 8 the authorities in Tokio had burned the bodies of 60,000 dead. The number still unfound, those drowned, buried under debris or burned in the general conflagration, is probably very great."

First Aid to Injured. "Up to the 8th in Tokio first aid had been administered in the emergency hospital stations to upwards of 500,000 injured and sick."

"Casualties in the Chiba and Kanagawa regions are great, but the investigation is not yet completed."

"Railways and other communications are rapidly being restored. Supplies of general commodities are increasing and authorities state that there will be no shortage of rice for two months and a half in Yokohama and Tokio."

Many of the industrial, commercial and publishing houses are planning to remove temporarily to the Kobe and Osaka districts, but there is no truth in reports that the capital is to be removed from Tokio, the dispatch states.

At least 50 Americans are now reported to have perished in Tokio in spite of previous statements that no casualties among American residents of the Japanese capital had occurred. The information was officially given out by American Ambassador Woods.

Explaining the reason for not rebuilding Yokohama, Japanese officials pointed out that the recent violent earthquake disturbances have played such havoc with the harbor bottom of the once proud port that it would require the expenditure of an excessive amount of money to dredge the port and remove hundreds of thousands of tons of debris. For a far less cost Tokio could not only be rehabilitated, but in addition the capital city could be made into one of the finest seaports of the far east.

READY FOR GONG

Jack Dempsey Finishes His Training
For the Fight.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Sept. 12.—"I'm ready now and I'll be ready for that gong Friday night," said Jack Dempsey after finishing his training here for his fight with Luis Firpo. "When I'm ready and fit to fight, I'd just as soon fight two or three men as one."

A triple spray of scarlet marked Dempsey's final workout with his sparring partners. Dempsey, in a savage mood, ripped and tore into his three foemen with extreme viciousness, and at the end of each bout his sparring partners were hanging on. And each was dripping blood from the lips, where Dempsey had jabbed and crashed them with hard punches.

TO SEEK STATE CO-OPERATION

President Coolidge for Law Enforcement in General.

TO CONFER WITH GOVERNORS

Would Make Prohibition Laws More Effective and Will Ask For Aid in Suppressing Drug Evil, Enforcement of Immigration Regulations and Other Questions That Have State and Federal Relationship.

Washington, Sept. 12.—President Coolidge plans to seek state co-operation for law enforcement in general, it was revealed at the White House.

In addition to state aid in making the prohibition laws effective, the president will ask specifically for co-operation in suppression of the drug evil, for enforcement of immigration regulations and other allied questions that have both a state and federal relationship.

These questions will be submitted to the conference of governors which the president contemplates calling this fall. No final decision has been reached as to where the conference will take place. The governors will hold their own annual conference, the meeting of the house of governors, the middle of October at Denver. The president is undecided whether to call the governors here before that meeting or immediately after.

The president believes it would be very helpful for the federal government to have the co-operation of the states in the enforcement of the laws of the United States, a White House spokesman declared, helpful both to the states and to the government.

The president has had conferences within the past week with Prohibition Commissioner Haynes, who submitted suggestions of a program for a discussion of prohibition laws with governors. The determination to include other questions will lead to a revision of this outline to include the narcotic evil.

Following the cabinet meeting the president held conferences with Secretary of Labor Davis and Attorney General Daugherty. The labor secretary is directly charged with enforcement of the immigration laws which the president plans to treat at the meeting with state executives. The actual prosecution of all law violators falls to the department of justice and it is through this department that the law enforcement agencies come in most direct touch with state officers and courts. The interchange of evidence between state and federal officials will enable both government and states in many cases to secure convictions where otherwise the case might fail for lack of sufficient proof.

WOULD CUT SURTAX ON HIGHER INCOMES

Mellon Directs Experts to Compile Necessary Data.

Washington, Sept. 12.—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon directed tax experts to compile the necessary data to enable him to go before congress with a recommendation for a reduction in the higher income surtaxes. Mellon will urge that they be cut from a maximum of 50 per cent to 25 per cent. It is understood that President Coolidge will support the recommendation and make it an administration measure.

On good authority it is learned that Secretary Mellon has come to the conclusion that a reduction of the so-called confiscatory tax on higher incomes will not work a hardship on the less wealthy, or poor classes. Instead of bringing money into the treasury, he finds, the large incomes are being converted into tax-exempt securities at the expense of other taxpayers. By removing the so-called higher brackets, he believes, vast sums of money will be turned into profitable and taxable production, which will enable the government to bring down taxes in general much sooner.

He has been working as a clerk in the penitentiary office. Mrs. Simon's home was in Philippi, W. Va.

COOLIDGE TO TAKE UP COAL PROBLEM

Would Have Fuel Available at Reasonable Prices.

WHITE HOUSE DECLARATION

President Has Already Taken Up the Matter of Increased Prices With the Coal Commission and Will Give the Commission Some Further Instruction in the Matter—Pinchot's Recommendations.

Washington, Sept. 12.—The federal government will do everything within its power to see that coal is made available to the people of the United States at reasonable prices.

This statement was made officially at the white house in response to inquiries regarding Governor Pinchot's letter to President Coolidge, urging that prompt steps be taken to safeguard the public against profiteering as a result of the 10 per cent wage increase granted the anthracite miners.

Mr. Coolidge already had taken up the matter of increased prices growing out of the hard coal controversy with the United States coal commission, and he now will give the commission some further instructions in the matter. The white house spokesman added: "The federal government will take such action as is possible to secure the distribution of fuel to the people of the United States at as reasonable prices as can be had."

Governor Pinchot, in his letter to the president, asserted that the wage increase agreed upon by the miners and operators under his auspices should in no way result in a price advance of more than 60 cents a ton. Ten cents of this, he declared, should be absorbed by the operators, many of whom could absorb the whole increase "and still make abundant profits." "In fairness," Governor Pinchot added, "the remainder of the 60 cents should never reach the consumer. It is certain, however, that this amount, and probably much more, will be exacted from the consumers unless public action is taken to prevent it."

As a practical means of taking care of a part of the increase, the Pennsylvania executive suggested that the interstate commerce commission could reduce the freight rates on the transportation of hard coal in interstate commerce. Pinchot already has ordered his state public service commission to take up the question of reducing similar rates within Pennsylvania. He also has communicated with his fellow governors of anthracite using states, calling on them to co-operate in a war against gouging.

ENVOY TO MEXICO

Coolidge Not to Make an Appointment at Present Time.

Washington, Sept. 12.—President Coolidge is satisfied with the existing status of relationship with Mexico for the time being and will not appoint an ambassador to the southern republic just now. This statement was made at the white house for the president in denial of reports that he is about to announce the appointment of R. B. Creager of Texas to the Mexico City post. When the time comes to select a Mexican ambassador, it was stated, Mr. Coolidge will confer with Secretary of State Hughes on the subject and will be guided by his recommendations. The belief prevails that no appointment will be made until after congress meets in December, in order that it may be acted upon by the senate.

FIRPO APPEARS FIT

Burn on His Right Arm Not Expected to Give Him Any Trouble.

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 12.—Luis Angel Firpo, challenger for the world's heavyweight crown, will en-train for New York late today. The New York headquarters prior to the fight will be in West 94th street.

Today the Argentine challenger displayed a fair amount of speed, boxing one round each with Frank Koebe, the speedy Brooklynite and two others. The rope burn on Firpo's right arm appeared to be healing and is not expected to give him any trouble, barring the ever-present possibility of infection.

Assassins Seized.

Lisbon, Sept. 12.—An unsuccessful attempt was made to assassinate Premier Da Silva of Portugal. The premier was leaving the ministry building when he was attacked by three syndicalists, who were arrested.

CHARGED WITH CONTEMPT

Attorney Fallon Accused in Court by His Own Witnesses.

New York, Sept. 12.—William J. Fallon, criminal attorney, charged with contempt of court in connection with his defense of Edward M. Fuller and W. Frank McGee, confessed bucketshop operators, was trapped by his own witnesses before Federal Judge Bundy. McGee, while being examined by Fallon, suddenly testified that Fallon tore up a confirmation card of Franklin W. Link, taken out of the Link folder, concerning the sale of 10 shares of stock. "He tore them up and threw them out of a window," McGee declared emphatically in answer to a question from Judge Bundy following an uproar caused by his original accusation. Fuller later took the stand and confirmed the testimony of his former partner. Fallon tried to have the testimony stricken from the records, but failed.

Quake Victims Need Clothing.

Kobe, Japan, Sept. 12.—Owing to the abundance of foodstuffs, the Japanese relief bureau has issued a statement requesting that all further contributions for the stricken region be confined generally to building materials and clothing. Among these two last items the greatest demand is for galvanized iron sheets or other roofing material, and for heavy winter clothing, especially knitted underwear made of wool or cotton, and all kinds of flannel clothing and blankets.

THOROUGH TEST MADE

Flight of the Navy's New Dirigible Witnessed by Millions.

New York, Sept. 12.—Millions greeted with upturned faces the new leviathan of the air, the navy's dirigible ZR-1, as it circled majestically around the metropolis, then sailed away for Philadelphia and returned as majestically and safely to its hangar at Lakehurst, N. J. The test was made in a stiff breeze and was a thorough test in every way. The big ship, like a great silver flying fish, appeared over the lower bay, circled the statue of liberty, then passed up the Hudson as far as Yonkers, doubling back over the Bronx, and then over the East river bridges. During the whole of its flight the ship was escorted by naval and military airplanes, which glided back and forth, climbing and diving in marked contrast to the deliberate but easy movements of the aerial leviathan.

People Demand Settlement.

Cologne, Sept. 12.—Public opinion in the Ruhr is undergoing a big change. There appears a keen desire everywhere for a settlement, but the workers are firm in their demand for the return of all expatriated rail men and their families, numbering more than 70,000 persons. The policy of the central German government in paying the workers in the Ruhr on the condition that they refuse to work has brought the industrialists to a realization that they are about to face a hard task to force the workers back to their old jobs for the same money.

EXPLAIN WHY DOGS HOWL

Scientists Declare Canine Occasionally Reverts to Savagery of His Ancestor, the Wolf.

What makes your dog lift up his nose and howl? It's the wolf in him, say scientists.

For every dog, no matter what his breed, has a strain of wolf in him, a wolf having been the far-off father of all dogs. And just as a reasonable human being will sometimes give way to primitive instinct under the influence of some violent emotion, so the best-trained dog will occasionally revert to the savagery of his ancestor, the wolf.

Exactly as a man will often raise his head in unconscious imitation of his caveman forebear, so your pet dog will at times show the instincts of his parent wolf. Watch your dog turn around and around before lying down before a fire, just as the wolf makes himself a lair; listen to him howl as the wolf howls.

The pointer is only an exaggerated instance of man's improvement on the original dog or wolf. Every dog pauses before his spring; man selected to breed from the dog which paused the longest, and so in time arrived at a dog which pointed and didn't spring at all. The greyhound is another instance; for his particular job he needed little scent and little brains, but perfect eyesight and speed. By selecting only those dogs which possessed these qualities the present type was reached. But every dog, wherever he lives or whatever use man is making of him, comes from the common source, the wolf.

Life Calls for One's Best.

To make a success of life you must be always at it with your eye on the job. Diversion will stimulate far more intensive effort, but the effort itself must have no diverting influence. THE WRONG ROAD

By ROSE MEREDITH

(C. 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

THE fortune teller's tent was surrounded by an eager crowd of young people awaiting turn to have the future revealed.

Nancy Flair threw a passing glance at the red tent as she passed along with her tray of flowers.

Some one stopped her.

"Nancy, dear, I will buy a posy before I go in to have my fortune told—I am hoping for a good fortune."

"Health and wealth?" asked Nancy tritely.

"All that, and the inevitable husband," answered the other carelessly.

"Come on in, Nan, and have yours told with me—it will be heaps of fun."

"One at a time, pretty ladies," whined the gypsy's voice from an inner tent.

"One at a time, and cross my palm with silver and you shall have a beautiful fortune—"

"I want the truth," came Nancy's strained young voice.

"Always the truth—I dare not tell otherwise," rambled the woman's deep tones.

"You first, Elizabeth," she urged, and her friend slipped into the close shadows of the inner tent. Nancy waited in the gloomy, shrouded place. Suddenly Elizabeth burst out of the tent.

"Oh, Nan, such fun! She has told me so much of the past and she says I will never be rich, but that I shall marry a learned man with a mole on his ear." Her voice dropped to a whisper. "Of course, it's Professor Ramsey."

She vanished outside, and Nancy slipped into the tent.

"Cross my palm with silver," mumbled the old crone.

A silver quarter fell from Nancy's fingers and was quickly pouched. A greasy looking pack of cards was shut-fled and deftly fluttered into an orderly row on the ground.

"The past an open book—happy childhood—girlhood—much learning—a sweet singing voice, a joyous heart, loved by many men."

"Oh, no!" interrupted Nan breathlessly. "Only a few, a very few foolish ones—never," with a little break in her tone, "never the right one."

"Who knows the right one?" grumbled the woman, shuffling the cards again; "here is a fair man—he is rich—he has loved you a long time—"

"No, no—" murmured Nancy, "I do not like your fortune—I do not like fair men—"

"You will cross water tomorrow—you will play on green grass under blue skies—and the fair man will follow, follow you—"

Nancy groaned inwardly. She had promised to play golf with Doctor Larrabee at the club on the morrow. She was doing it just to spite Larry Corning, who had been away on a business trip and who had not returned in time for the church fair, now going on. She had written him a tiny little note reminding him of the fair—and he had not replied.

"I hate him!" she suddenly exclaimed.

"Fate conquers all—hate the fair man if you will, lady. . . ."

"No, I hate dark men," she corrected impatiently. "Hurry on with my fortune, please. The fortune—the fortune," and another silver piece was dropped on the scattered cards. The coin fell on the knave of clubs.

"Hi!" exclaimed the gypsy, "See the good omen, lady, the coin has fallen on the dark gentleman—fortune is near—a dark lover—would woo you, but you are cold to him—he has little gold—but a warm heart—just now a cloud is between you, but the sunshine of your smile will pierce the clouds—ach—ach—ker—ker—achoo!"

The stinging smoke from the burning faggots had done its work. The gypsy sneezed and disappeared in a swirl of red and yellow draperies. For an instant, Nancy Flair stood enfranced with astonishment, then realization burst upon her.

Larry Corning, clever Larry of the college dramatic club in his younger days, had posed as the gypsy fortune teller. Even Nancy, who knew him best, had been deceived until that inimitable sneeze had escaped. Fury shook her very heart. What had she betrayed?

She turned and fled through the thinning crowd of people. As she ran hot tears coursed down her flaming cheeks. How she hated him—how she—

Some one overtook her and folded her in flapping draperies. It was the gypsy fortune teller, now towering his six feet above her. "Ah, pretty lady," he pleaded, "it was not my fault, and I love you so—"

"Wh-wh-y didn't you tell me before?" gasped Nancy, "and besides, I have just said I hated you, Larry."

Larry stooped again and kissed her lips.

"If you hate me like this, darling, I will not ask for love," he dared to say. "Pretty lady, you will marry a poor man who loves you, and you will be happy forever after—and so will I," declared this unusual seer. "We have been traveling wrong roads, and now we are right on the road to happiness."

U. S. EXPERIMENTS CUT COST OF GAS

Adjustment of Carburetors on Government Trucks Reduces Consumption of Fuel.

Washington.—Substantial savings of gasoline by the periodical adjustment of carburetors based on the results of analysis of exhaust gases from automobile engines are said to be feasible by the Department of the Interior following experiments made by the bureau of mines on the fleet of motor trucks used by the government fuel yard in Washington. As the result of carburetor adjustments made by gas analysis in the bureau's experiments, an actual increased efficiency in mileage and saving of gasoline amounting to 22 per cent was attained. The tests demonstrate that a portable carbon dioxide indicator for testing the exhaust gases of a motor vehicle gives a positive indication of the carburetor adjustment, removes all guesswork of such adjustment and is perfectly feasible practically.

Samples of Gas Tested.

The government fuel yard trucks tested by the bureau of mines ranged in capacity from two and a half to seven and a half tons. During the winter months, when the demand for coal is heavy, from 30 to 35 trucks are used. Samples of the exhaust gas were taken on the trucks kept in service for summer hauling in order to determine the carburetor adjustment as used. Changes then were made to a more economical adjustment whenever possible, without sacrificing flexibility of operation and power. In all but one case the carburetors were found to be adjusted too rich for maximum power and economy.

Increase in Mileage Noted.

The actual increase in mileage and saving of gasoline due to the carburetor adjustments made by gas analysis when the month previous and the month following the adjustments are compared, showed an increase in mileage of 22 per cent; for the second month after adjustment, 16 per cent, and for the third month, 9 per cent. When the mileage is compared truck for truck, and not taking into consideration the distance each traveled during the month, the increased mileage equaled 24.7, 21.2 and 16.2 per cent, respectively.

The adjustment of carburetors by analysis of exhaust gas is based upon the fact that the carbon dioxide in the exhaust is a direct indication of the air-fuel ratio and completeness of combustion. In turn, the air-fuel ratio and completeness of combustion tell whether the carburetor is properly adjusted for maximum power and gasoline economy.

Adjustment Usually Rich.

Other conditions being constant, the mileage obtainable varies as the percentage of carbon dioxide in the exhaust gas and air-fuel ratio. This has been little realized by most garage men in the past. Usually the adjustment is far too rich for maximum economy. There are, however, exceptions to this rule. A determination of the carbon dioxide content of the exhaust gas while the vehicle is being operated on the road gives a positive indication of the carburetor adjustment.

The results of the bureau of mines experiments show that adjustable carburetors tend to become more richly adjusted with lapse of time, and that the adjustments should be checked at least every two months to maintain the most economical adjustments.

Driving Is a Big Factor.

The bureau suggests that one driver may be able to get considerable more mileage than another, due to the method of driving. The mileage is greatly increased by disengaging the clutch whenever possible and coasting. In approaching a heavy grade sufficient momentum should be obtained to carry the vehicle a considerable distance up the grade before making it necessary to change the gears.

Weather has a marked effect on the mileage obtainable. In general, a motor runs better at higher humidity and temperatures. Rainy weather decreases the mileage on account of the slippery nature of the streets; so does snowy weather.

Injunction to Stop Woman "Making Love"

Detroit, Mich.—Judge Richter granted an injunction restraining Louise Keef, from "following, molesting and openly making love to" Joseph A. Gregg.

The two had been friends, the petition said, but for nearly a year Miss Keef's attentions had been unendurable and harassing to Mr. Gregg. She hid behind "telephone poles, garages and trees." It was charged, and came upon him unawares.

She said, "Hello, grandpa," to him a few days ago while he was talking on a corner to a young woman friend and then turned and said, "Hello, grandpa," to the young woman, according to the petition. He called police and Miss Keef was ordered to leave him alone but, according to Gregg, she refused to do so.

Only the watchfulness of his landlady caused her to fail to surprise him at his boarding house, Mr. Gregg said.

English Travel in Security.

London.—Only five passengers of the 1,186,479,000 carried on English railways during 1922 were killed in accidents. This is one passenger in every 237,000,000.

THRIFT and EDUCATION

We think that "Thrift" should be as much the part of the American child's education as arithmetic, geography and spelling.

Doesn't it sound rather inconsistent to teach all the fine points about MAKING MONEY without saying a word about how to TAKE CARE OF IT after it is made.

A good way to teach thrift, is for each and every parent to see that his child, has a Savings Account in this solid institution.

Such a step will have a beneficial influence on the child's future character.

CARE OF VETERANS' CHILDREN

Government Bureau Will Co-Operate With Legion in Plan for Attention to Dependents.

Full co-operation of the children's bureau of the United States Department of Labor will be extended to the American Legion in the plan for care of dependent children of World war veterans. This assistance to the program of the Legion on a problem which Legion leaders believe will eventually approximate care of disabled, will be rendered in every possible way, according to Miss Grace Abbott, chief of the children's bureau, in charge of welfare work for the government.

Miss Abbott has clearly outlined to George A. Withers, chairman of the Legion's national committee on children's homes, her ideas of what the veterans' organization should undertake in this work. In the first place, Miss Abbott says that every effort should be bent toward keeping the children of the Legion whose fathers have died, or are incapacitated, with their mothers or near relatives who are willing and competent to care for them. Miss Abbott declares that in the past it has been a common practice to take away children from the remaining parent if means are insufficient to care for the dependents. Usually, according to child welfare workers, this operates adversely, causing a double loss to the child. Sometimes a mother is allowed to struggle under a load obviously too great for her shoulders, and the family becomes demoralized—sometimes delinquent. Here, thinks Miss Abbott, is where the Legion posts may help in this portion of the problem by friendly help and care, and by lending assistance in the schooling.

Miss Abbott says that foster homes are generally regarded as better than institutional, if children must be taken from their parents or relatives. "Such an institution," declared Miss Abbott to Chairman Withers, "should be the last resort after every effort has been made to keep the family together, rather than the beginning of a program. If you could get every post to report to the state department, and in turn to report to national headquarters as to the success in caring and providing for these children, helping families to remain together, in finding ways of providing scholarships for the education of the children, etc., then finally as to the institutional care which may be necessary, I think you would make sure that the Legion children were having the right kind of opportunity for home life, for special care, if physically defective in any way, and for education, which is their right."

The government welfare workers holds that members of the Legion who are to handle this vital problem for its members should be named from the ablest men in the organization, and that they should approach the question as one which is certain to require diligent study, great expenditure of time, and much patience and ingenuity.

LONG FIGHT WON BY LEGION

Federal Judge Killits Holds Foreign-Born Objectors Not Entitled to Citizenship.

Foreign-born men who had conscientious objections against serving in the United States military and were exempted have been denied citizenship by Federal Judge John M. Killits of Toledo, Ohio. This matter has been the subject of a long and bitter fight by members of the American Legion throughout the country, and officials of the Veterans' organization were well pleased with the action denying to such men the rights of citizenship. Judge Killits, in his opinion, declared that the court was unable to see how any applicant, who, on the grounds of conscience, objected to bearing arms in his country's defense, can take the oath of citizenship without reservations and that he, as the court, was unwilling to accept any such oath with reservations to it.

"Without any intention to reflect upon the quality of the profession of conscientious objectors," declared Judge Killits, "we feel that it is enough that the country must endure the native born of that persuasion whose citizenship is a birthright without extending the number by the favor of the naturalization laws."

Many posts of the Legion have fought against granting of citizenship rights to such applicants since the close of the war, and in a number of cases, the fight has been successful. The Toledo instance, however, is believed to be the first decision of a federal court in the matter.

Ohio Is in Lead.

Ohio leads all other states in the number of local voltures of La Societe des 40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux, the "playground of the Legion," though only one-half of the state is organized. The department now has 45 voltures, with Iowa second with 37, Illinois third with 36, Pennsylvania fourth with 31, and New York fifth with 28. The largest volture of La Societe is in Los Angeles county, California, where the local membership is 316. Polk county, Iowa (Des Moines), is second with 214; Linn county, Iowa (Cedar Rapids), third with 205, and Cook county, Illinois (Chicago), with 204 fourth. These are the only voltures which number a membership of over 200. Membership in La Societe is based on activities in the organization of the American Legion, and is selective.

CONSCIENCE FUND KEEPS INCREASING

Tax Dodgers Have Given U. S. Over Half Million Dollars.

DONATION MADE TO ROAD

Since one September morning, in 1811, when an astonished clerk in the United States treasury discovered a crisp $5 note in the morning's mail, along with an anonymous letter from a conscience-stricken converted sinner, a "Conscience Fund" has always been maintained—and well supported. The chief contributors to this fund, year after year, have somehow managed to escape the snare of the federal fowler, only to be caught later in the coils of the secret service agent commonly known as our conscience, says a Washington dispatch.

It was Franklin who said that nothing in this world is certain but death and taxes. The federal fund which is credited to conscience, and which now amounts to considerably more than half a million dollars, suggests that quite a few people try to sidestep the latter certainty only to find that the cost of dishonesty is unhappiness.

Gifts From 2 Cents to $30,000.

Amounts have been mailed to Washington ranging all the way from 2 cents to $30,000. One man returned his original defalcation four-fold in imitation of the publican Zaccheus. A London vicar once sent Uncle Sam the sum of $14,225.15, the money having been entrusted to him by a traveling American who had been converted in his chapel and who wanted to "square himself" and thus ease his troublesome conscience.

But the most recent case is rather different from any of these. A few days ago a man with a hunted look stepped up to the ticket agent at the railroad station at Uniontown, Pa., and asked what the fare was from Greensburg to Scottsdale. When told that it was exactly 53 cents he deposited two quarters and three coppers and went away happy, for, like the village blacksmith, he could now look the whole world in the face for he owed not any man. At least that was what he seemed to think, for, as he explained to the surprised agent, he had beat a conductor out of that amount just 30 years ago by failing to pay his fare at the time.

Few Feel They Owe Roads.

It is not intimated in the news dispatch that there is any likelihood of the railroad company opening a "Conscience Fund" for future credits of the kind. It wouldn't pay. There are not enough people, who patronize the railroads, who ever feel that they owe anything to a corporation which charges "all the traffic will bear." They may be all wrong in this, but their consciences seldom worry them, railroad officials say. Most people, if suddenly faced to forward a missed fare to a railroad company, would probably do so in the manner of Bill Nye, who used to write to his creditors, "Enclosed please find $2, on account—if you can."

THOUSANDS OF WAR BOOKS

Eight Thousand Volumes Written by Americans Alone.

Americans are writing about the war and the peace to such an extent that an American room will be established when the French war library and museum in Paris are moved into permanent quarters at the Chateau de Vincennes next year. There are already 8,000 volumes by Americans, and the Museum boasts that it has one of the finest collections of American war posters.

Germans, too, have been busy writing about the war. Their works comprise 25,000 volumes. France comes next.

This institution was set up by the government to develop the work started by a wealthy Frenchman who, early in the war, began assembling war documents.

MUST SPEAK ITALIAN

Maltese Government Orders Instruction of Children in Language.

On account of a large Italian population the British naval base of Malta exhibits as many problems for the British government as does Tunis for the French government for the same reason. Although the French population in Tunis is 50,000, against the Italian population of 150,000, the Italian language is not officially recognized there and Italian schools are supported either by the Italian government or by subscriptions and fees. In Malta a new law has been approved, which makes obligatory instruction in Italian as well as in English.

In 1922, 95 per cent of the parents chose English for their children in the primary schools.

RUSSIAN GRAIN TO GERMANY

400,000 Tons Thus Far Exported, Hamburg Reports Show.

Russia has exported 600,000 tons of grain so far this year, according to statistics issued at Hamburg, where of Germany has taken over two-thirds. Before the war Russia exported about 8,000,000 tons of grain. The entire exports for this year are estimated between 2,500,000 and 3,000,000 tons.

FEW BIRDS RELY ON SMELL

Only Three Are Known to Make Use of This Sense—the Dove, Buzzard and Jay.

It is a rather curious fact that only three of the common birds seem to make any constant use of their valuable sense of smell, says the Review of Reviews. These are the turtle dove (close relative of the famous, now extinct passenger pigeon) the turkey buzzard and the famous Canada jay, common about hunters' camps in the north-eastern woods.

Hunters believe that the "whisky jacks," as they are commonly called, assemble as soon as they detect the smoke of a campfire, and the latter has seen them coming from a distance, in the deep forest where a campfire had been kindled, to watch the builders of it, and steal any "grub" they could find. They are as "bold as brass" about this operation, as the hunters say. The present writer has had them pilfer bacon he held in his very hands, in the Canadian woods.

The buzzards gather freely wherever carrion is displayed. They are valuable as scavengers, and are protected by the laws of several states. Their aerial movements often reveal the whereabouts of a dead horse or cow, on which they gather for a grand feast. This is plainly the result of the operation of their sense of smell, which must be preternaturally acute. They are never seen to attack any creature that shows a sign of life, but they will sit around, gravely silent, and watch an expiring cow until she is quite dead, and then descend for their feast, which is a ravenous one and thoroughly completed.

There are plenty of visible evidences that these birds actually do rely upon their sense of smell for this work, yet the same sort of evidence seems to be lacking from the other birds who eat putrid tissue, and must know its odor. The northern trappers hate this feathered robber, which they often find clutched in a trap they had carefully set for a mink or other furbearing mammal. If a Canada jay, or a buzzard finds such a trap, he is pretty likely to rob and spring it, and it is little satisfaction to the trapper to find the lifeless bird in the trap's jaws.

USE INDIAN CANOES IN ITALY

American Craft Become Popular and Are Manufactured in Large Numbers.

The American Indian canoe, which for centuries has plied only the streams and lakes of the North American continent, has at last found its way to the classic "yellow Tiber." Canoeing has become a favorite river sport of the Romans. On Sunday a dozen or more of the frail Indian craft can be seen in the yellow waters gliding along the shores in company with skiffs, shells, sculls and motor boats.

The graceful Indian water conveyance has become so popular that an Italian firm has commenced the manufacture of them. They took several American canoes as models and then began turning them out by the scores. A canoe club also has been organized, and many Americans have joined. Paddling to the perfection of the Indians has not yet been achieved. The Romans make vain efforts to keep the canoe headed straight but a change of paddles is necessary after every few strokes.

Worst Hurricane on Record.

The most terrible cyclone of modern times was probably that of October 10, 1780, which has been specially named "the great hurricane."

Starting from Barbados, where neither trees nor dwellings were left standing, it caused an English fleet anchored off St. Lucia to disappear, and completely ravaged this island, where 6,000 persons were crushed under the ruins.

After this the whirlwind, tending toward Martinique, enveloped a convoy of French transports, and sunk more than forty ships, carrying 4,000 soldiers; on land the towns of St. Pierre and other places were completely razed by the wind, and 9,000 persons perished there. More to the north, Dominique, St. Eustatius, St. Vincent and Porto Rico were likewise devastated, and most of the vessels which were in the path of the cyclone foundered with all their crews. Beyond Porto Rico the tempest bent to the northeast toward the Bermudas, and though its violence gradually diminished, it sunk several English warships returning to Europe.

AMUSEMENTS

Gloria Swanson has a new leading man. He is the popular actor, Antonio Moreno, who has long been one of the screen's best known stars.

Mr. Moreno plays the role of Manuel La Tassa, a young Argentine aristocrat in Miss Swanson's latest Paramount starring vehicle, "My American Wife," which comes to the Met theater tonight and tomorrow.

The story is a colorful and unusual romance laid in the Argentine and presenting the love story of a handsome young aristocrat and politician, descendant of one of the old Spanish conquistadores and a beautiful American girl from Kentucky, who owns the horse which outraces the valued track champion of the Latin nobleman.

There are many other interesting names in the supporting cast, in addition to Mr. Moreno, who in this role plays for the first time in a Paramount picture and makes his first screen appearance with Gloria Swanson.

The various other characters, the majority of which are Argentine, are essayed by such well known and talented screen players as Josef Swickard, Eric Mayne, Geno Corrado, Edythe Chapman, Elnee Pringle, F. B. Butler, Jacques D'Auray, Loyal Underwood and Walter Long, who as usual is the heavy. Some of these players have been seen in many Paramount pictures, but a few of them are said to be new on the Paramount stage.

Ostrich Feathers on Fall Headgear

Fluffy Trimming to Hold Prominent Place on New Hats.

An unusual feather fancy is seen on a Caroline Reboux medium size model of black panne in cloche form, with two pompons of black and henna ostrich hanging from the side. The flues of these feathers are weighted down with spots of pasted feathers in the same coloring. Lewis uses a small poke which has the effect of being made of fish scales, but it is designed of black spangles, each one outlined by a tiny rim of brown felt.

One of the new medium sized shapes of black hatter's plush that rolls high on one side and low on the other, comes from Suzy. This is trimmed from the high side, around the back and falling over the opposite shoulder, with a thin black ostrich feather tipped in cerise and held to the hat at the high side in a large ornament of the same color galath which is quite new in effect. A toque of black satin comes from the same maker. This has a high front cuff effect which is inlaid in a brilliant Chinese embroidery which shows much red.

A new color, which is spoken of as the lies de vin, or dregs of wine, as its name suggests, is a very lovely deep red tone. The range of shades around this tone have been combined in an entire hat by one of the modistes, either in ribbon or in silk embroidery.

eries. Dark green is also very much in evidence for the new season, and all of the tones of brown are good. At the present time in Paris, quite a little navy is being worn.

Small and medium sized hats are the item for fall and, of course, everything has the short back. Velvet is spoken of as the biggest item, and there is some use of ostrich, in changeable effects particularly.

It is, however, the high-crowned hat with the small brim that is considered one of the most interesting features of this fashion talk, these shapes with small brims that may turn up on one side alone, or on both sides directly to the crown, or then again they may turn up at the back only. The trimmings which are spoken of in connection with these are swirls of contrasting velvet about the crowns, or ribbon cocardes made in novel ways; or flat loops of wide grosgrain ribbon made in a rather careless cocarde directly at the back of the crown and standing up just a bit beyond. Leather bands and feather pompons and pads are used frequently.

The latest and most attractive sport hats are yarn trimmed. Sport hats depend upon their yarn trim for chic and smartness. Even the sailor has cast aside its band of ribbon for rows and rows of yarn, wound around here and there in strands of five-yarn threads with a contrasting yarn or silk stitch.

To Renew All Chipped and Discolored Walls

Walls that are finished with any one of the various water finishes--that is, water in which is mixed something like a colored whitewash leaving the walls tinted or colored--often show wear or rubbing or even apparent chipping off of the color where chairs or furniture have scraped against them. Without doing the whole wall over, it can be refurnished to a great extent merely by using a fine brush wet with water. A very fine whisk broom, or a common paint brush thoroughly clean is all right to use. Wet this and shake most of the water off. Then go over the chipped and discolored places. The color from the near surfaces of the wall will again cover these whitened spots and do much toward giving the walls an appearance of having been redecorated. One housewife goes over her walls each year in this way, and redecoration is seldom needed.

For Sports Wear.

Some fascinating blouses are shown for wear with sports costumes, as much care being spent on their design as on that of whole evening frocks. One such bit of perfection is of white georgette, made with long sleeves. In front and back are panels of printed white satin, the design being Persian, and in the soft Persian colorings.

Frelinghuysen Would Stay Out.

Washington, Sept. 12.—Former Senator Frelinghuysen of New Jersey joined the chorus of Americans returning from Europe advising against the United States taking any hand in affairs over there. He called on President Coolidge at the white house. European nations were declared by the former senator to have little, if any, faith in the league of nations as a medium to preserve peace and to be equally suspicious of the world court.

Bishop Welch Safe.

Delaware, O., Sept. 12.—Friends here have had a cablegram from Bishop Herbert Welch, former president of Ohio Wesleyan university, stating that he and his family are safe in Japan. Much concern was held for Bishop Welch's safety.

DEDICATION

Muhlenberg Township Has Fine New Structure—Good Program.

The new centralized school building of Muhlenberg township at Darbyville was dedicated Friday evening, September 7. Rev. E. S. Matheny, of Columbus, gave the opening address and presented the building to the board of education which was accepted by President Milton Fullen. Professor M. C. Warren, county superintendent, then gave an excellent address on the subject, "A Golden Dream Never Dies," which was enjoyed by all. The people of our township should be proud of such a building for the benefit of its future, as well as present citizens. Refreshments were served by the Parent-Teachers' association.

TO HOLD CORFU

Mussolini's Program Causes Concern in Britain and France.

London, Sept. 12.—The British foreign office is gravely disturbed by the news from Rome that Premier Mussolini has reiterated his determination not to evacuate Corfu until the inquiry into the Janina murders has been completed and the blame finally settled. Officials here believe that Mussolini is pursuing his present course for the purpose of delaying a settlement, because Premier Poincare of France is opposed to Italian retention of the island for fear that Italy might use Corfu as a basis in war with Serbia, which is France's ally. Unless Mussolini changes his program and tactics, Britain is hoping for the support of France in the effort to submit the issue to the league of nations.

Those present were; Mr. Lewis Duvall, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cox and son, Billy, of Lancaster; Mr. and Mrs. Amos Duvall and children; Marie Howard, Charles and Bertha Louise, of Atlanta; Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Shasteen and daughters; Erma, Esther and Bernice, of this city. The reunion will be held at Columbus next year.

Advice From James J. Hill.

If a young fellow doggedly bucks the world and circumstances without sense or reason all the time, he is liable to get nothing more than a sore head. He must know how to take advantage of opportunities, to use his brains; in short a young man who has no brains ought at least to have enough animal sense to find it out and learn to depend upon and get what benefit he can from people that have got brains.—James J. MARCONI DEVELOPS PLAN TO SEND CHEAP MESSAGES

Minimum of Electrical Current Will Be Needed When New Waves Are Used.

Another great step in the development of wireless telegraphic transmission has been realized, says Senator Marconi, who has returned to London after a two months' experimental cruise in his yacht, according to a London dispatch. A system has been evolved by the Italian inventor whereby wireless messages are transmitted with a minimum of electrical power, and at very low cost.

"We have transmitted messages up to a distance of 2,250 miles, not only with a very much smaller amount of power and energy, but faster and more cheaply than with the ordinary system of long-distance wireless," said Senator Marconi.

"When the new system is adopted it will mean that a power station for long-distance work can be erected at much less cost than at present. I have telegraphed on this system from Cape Verde Island, off the African coast, to London. To send messages clearly and more rapidly over those 2,500 miles took less power than a message from London to Paris by the ordinary methods."

Senator Marconi explained that these advantages were gained by the utilization of waves that have not before been used. Given the necessary mechanical element, he said, messages could be sent clearly seven times faster than the present rate, and that the public and the newspapers ultimately would have the benefit of much cheaper commercial charges. His opinion is that wireless is only in its infancy, and that the future has in store greater marvels than have been revealed in the past.

Commenting on recent experiments conducted by American inventors looking to privacy in wireless telephonic conversation, Senator Marconi said he was afraid such an achievement was still far off. "I do not say that wireless telegraphy ever will be an absolutely private means of transmission, but I will say that in the future it will be possible to make it much more difficult for any one to get messages not intended for them."

MORE OPIUM USED IN CHINA

American Professor Says Greater Amount Is Being Consumed.

China, under pressure of internal strife, has relapsed deeply into the thralldom of narcotics, according to Rev. Dr. H. H. Gowen, professor of oriental languages and literature in the University of Washington, who has just returned to Seattle, Wash., from a tour of the Orient.

"Farmers in many districts have been practically forced to return to the cultivation of the poppy," said Dr. Gowen today, "because the military governors have assessed their lands on the basis of what they will produce in opium. Military governors in other districts are actually paying their soldiers in opium."

Not since 1907, when the powers made their first effort to release China from narcotics, has the habit of their use been so firmly fixed as now, according to experts interviewed by Dr. Gowen. He said that morphine had been introduced and was having an effect many times worse than that of opium, to which the Chinese had become accustomed.

HARTMAN THEATER

No picture that has even been presented in Columbus, not even "The Birth of a Nation" has been received with more enthusiastic acclaim by the thousands who crowd the theater than the much talked of picturization of Emerson Hough's great novel "The Covered Wagon" now playing twice daily at the Hartman theater, Columbus and which the management has decided to continue for another week.

In his criticism in the Columbus Dispatch H. E. Cherrington writes: "Covered Wagon is Hartman triumph. So big, so suggestive, so vital and so important we could scarcely grasp the grandeur of it all. "The Covered Wagon" will move you like a burst of sunrise or a flash of heroic banners."

Daisy H. Krier in the Ohio State Journal says: "The picture is an inspiration, a clean picture of the days in the late forties. It is worth regular theater prices."

And the critic of the Columbus Citizen has this to say: "Incomparable in its settings and unerring in every detail, "The Covered Wagon" brings to the screen an inspiration."

Matinee and night performances are given daily, including Sunday and mail orders for next week are now being filled in the order of their receipt.

Plan Eradication of Wild Onion Crop

Practice of Fall Plowing Followed by Intertilled Crop Most Effective.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Numerous reports received from farmers who have employed the methods of controlling and eradicating the wild onion, or garlic, suggested by the United States Department of Agriculture, state without an exception that where late fall plowing has been practiced followed by an intertilled crop the next spring, the onion has been destroyed.

One farmer in Ohio reports that he has had good results in destroying the onion by thoroughly disking the land in the fall to destroy all the top growth of the onions and in the following spring giving the land thorough preparation and planting to some intertilled crop, such as corn. A Virginia farmer has had success in eradicating the onions by plowing the infested land deep late in the fall and seeding to wheat. The following summer immediately after the wheat is harvested, he again plows the land, this time shallow and seeds by soy beans. With the two years of such treatment he has succeeded in destroying all the onions.

Start Work in Fall.

To kill the wild onion, says the department, the work must be started in the fall. The object of this work is to destroy the plants, which grow from soft-shelled bulbs, before they have advanced far enough for new bulbs to form in the ground beside the old bulbs. The best time is when the plants are about 12 to 15 inches high. This is during October and November in the South, and during November and December in the North. When the plant at this stage is entirely turned under by deep plowing, it is killed. If this plowing were put off until spring, however, these plants would have formed new bulbs, which would be able to grow even though the parent plants were destroyed. It is highly important that the tops be completely buried by the plowing; otherwise many of them would keep on growing. A plow with a jointer attached to the beam will often be a great help in turning under the tops, while disking the land previous to plowing will also aid in accomplishing this result.

The following spring the field should be planted to an intertilled crop. Corn, preferably planted in checkrows, is best. From the time the farmer is able to get on the land in the spring until the corn is laid by, his efforts should be directed toward preventing the onion from making top growth. This spring or early summer work is to kill the plants which have come up from the hard-shelled bulbs which lived through the winter. Some of these bulbs, however, may not start growth for a year or two, so it is necessary to continue giving careful cultivation for a year or two.

Cleaning Up Pasture.

Eradicating the onion from pastures, if the plants are not too numerous, may be done by digging up each plant and destroying. Sheep eat the tops of the onion, and grazing for a few years often gives the desired results. The application of poison to each plant, where it is practicable to do so, will destroy them. Coal-tar creosote oil applied to each plant at the rate of about four thimblefuls is effective in killing both the plant and the ungerminated bulbs.

Since the sowing of seed grain infested with the onion bulblets, which are about the size of the wheat grain, is one of the principal ways by which the weed is spread, it follows that clean seed should be used as a preventive measure.

Estimate of Kentucky Blue Grass Seed Crop

According to a report issued by the bureau of agricultural economics, United States Department of Agriculture, the production of blue grass seed in the Kentucky and Missouri districts is estimated at 800,000 to 850,000 bushels of roughly cured seed. This is approximately 60 per cent of last year's crop. The acreage of blue grass stripped both in Kentucky and Missouri was fully equal to that of a year ago and the 40 per cent reduction in the amount harvested was due to unfavorable weather conditions early in the spring. The report also states that Kentucky has a large carry-over of seed from last year, the amount being estimated at 550,000 bushels of rough cured seed. Adding this carry-over to the crop harvested this year, it appears that the total amount of blue grass seed available this year is fully equal to the 1922 crop.

First Milk From Mother

The longer the calf is allowed to nurse the cow the harder it will be to teach it to drink from a pail. However, the first milk, or colostrum, has properties that normal milk does not have and which are necessary to give the calf the best start. For this reason the youngster should always receive the first milk. If it is left with the mother for 48 hours it will get enough of the stimulating first milk and may still take to drinking from a pail without much trouble. A weak calf may be left with the cow a little longer, but more patience will be required to teach it to drink.

FEET INDEX TO CHARACTER

Pedal Extremities While at Table in Restaurant Reveal Owners' Inner Selves.

Have you ever noticed people's feet while they are eating? asks the New York Sun and Globe. Best index to character available. Observation in a quick-lunch palace will bear this out. The diners carefully watch their manipulation of silver, arrangement of fingers from thumb to "pinkie," angle of head to table, and diameter of the mouth opening to receive the food.

Few pay any attention to their feet, and accordingly, there's the place where their true inner selves step out and betray the jealously guarded secret of their ego.

The man who keeps his feet flat on the floor, straight in front of him, is a rare specimen. He's a practical, hard-headed business man who stands for no nonsense and leaves a nickel tip.

The girl who sits with the toes of one foot turned at an impossible angle to the toes of her other foot is an incurable romanticist, and like as not is reading "Love Stories" while extracting nourishment from a charlotte russey sort of pastry. She'll probably leave two tips, or no tip, and start to walk out without paying her check.

A precise person, who probably whistles his s's and is immaculate in appearance, always aware of everything but never known to smile, sits with ankles daintily crossed. If the owner of the ankles is a girl, she does not betray violent enthusiasm for her food, no matter how hungry she may be, but like clockwork regulates her chewing, swallows of water and movement of her eyelashes.

The scatterbrain can be recognized in an instant. He probably has one foot wrapped around the leg of a chair and the other trespassing into territory on the other side of the table. He doesn't know whether it's his own foot or his neighbor's foot that is hurt when a chair steps on it, but smiles with equal foolishness one way or the other.

The man who crosses his legs at the knees while eating has no interest in his lunch. He eats because it's part of his daily program, but would be just as well pleased if he never ate. His mind is on the office.

Every one knows the individual whose feet are well out in the aisle, where the waiter and patrons fall over them. He's inconsiderate, a bully at home, and ready to snarl at a moment's notice.

The best of all is the tomboy sort of girl, who parks both heels on the bottom rung of her chair, and starts to sway back and forth if the waiter is slow about the order. She's a good sport and if she ever forgets her purse, the cashier will be willing to trust her until tomorrow, something that no other patron would get if he were introduced by J. P. Morgan himself.—New York Sun and Globe.

Years Added to Life.

The general effect of the emergence of women from earlier conditions it is still too early to measure with convincing accuracy, especially if the observer has not felt the weight of past restrictions. But some of the gains made are sufficiently common and obvious to force recognition. For instance, ten or twenty years have been added to the lives of women, both in active work and in enjoyment. A century ago fifteen was a marriageable age, thirty was mature matronhood and forty was old age. As to anything over forty—that was sheer senility. Women live somewhat longer than do men, but their life cycle in men's minds covered, in the past, only the child-bearing period; they had less childhood, less youth, less maturity and far more of the least desirable period, old age. Save as somebody's mother or grandmother, they ceased to be. Today they have longer childhood, longer youth, and maturity holds on steadily, with health and strength, ambition and enjoyment, well into what used to be mere fireside knitting time. The woman of fifty and onward has a wide, free outlook; many have undertaken new trades and professions and carried them on successfully. This is a great and beneficent change of status.—Current History Magazine.

All Serene.

The Florida beach and blue sea looked inviting to the tourist from the North, but before venturing out to swim he thought to make sure.

"You're certain there are no alligators here?" he inquired of the guide.

"Nossur!" replied that functionary grinning broadly. "Ain' no 'gators hyah."

Reassured, the tourist started out. As the water lapped about his chest he called back:

"What makes you so sure there aren't any alligators?"

"Dey's got too much sense," bel lowed the guide. "De sharks done skeered dem all away."—American Legion Weekly.

Timely.

"That certainly was a very fine sermon," said an enthusiastic church member who was an ardent admirer of the minister. "A fine sermon and well timed, too."

"Yes," answered his unadmirable neighbor, "it certainly was well-timed. Fully half of the congregation had their watches out."—Watchman-Examiner.

Something Just as Good.

"My hair is falling out," complained Mr. Riggs to the druggist. "Can't you recommend something to keep it in?"

"Certainly," replied the druggist. "I advise you to get an empty box."

BODIES OF 60,000 BURNED AT TOKIO

Casualties at Yokohama Now Estimated at 110,000.

OFFICIAL DISPATCH RECEIVED

Number of Earthquake Victims in the Devastated Area Still Unfound Very Great, the Message to the Japanese Embassy at Washington Says. Property Damage Enormous, but Not Yet Determined.

Washington, Sept. 12.—Casualties in Yokohama are now estimated at 110,000, or one-quarter of the entire population, while in Tokio the authorities up to the night of Sept. 8 had incinerated the bodies of 60,000 fire and earthquake victims, according to an official dispatch to the Japanese embassy here.

Following the first shock on Sept. 1, there were 1,319 separate shocks recorded up to 6 o'clock on the morning of Sept. 6, the dispatch states, adding:

"The population of the whole affected area is 6,000,000. The property damage, which, of course, is immense, is not yet determined or estimated.

"An official investigation by the ministry for foreign affairs shows that in Yokohama of 3,000 foreign residents 100 killed, including 50 British and 20 Americans. Of the survivors, only nine remained ashore, most of the others having gone to Kobe aboard the Empress Australia and the Andre Lebon, some others remaining on board the steamers Ambrose and Empress of Canada, including the staffs of foreign embassies, legations and consulates, which are directing the work for the relief of their nations. The government is co-operating in the matter of communications and transportation."

"The Tokio prefectural government is guarding the property of the foreigners at Yokohama, collecting the dead and taking all possible measures of salvage.

"Up to midnight Sept. 8 the authorities in Tokio had burned the bodies of 60,000 dead. The number still unfound, those drowned, buried under debris or burned in the general conflagration, is probably very great.

First Aid to Injured.

"Up to the 8th in Tokio first aid had been administered in the emergency hospital stations to upwards of 500,000 injured and sick.

"Casualties in the Chiba and Kanagawa regions are great, but the investigation is not yet completed.

"Railways and other communications are rapidly being restored. Supplies of general commodities are increasing and authorities state that there will be no shortage of rice for two months and a half in Yokohama and Tokio."

Many of the industrial, commercial and publishing houses are planning to remove temporarily to the Kobe and Osaka districts, but there is no truth in reports that the capital is to be removed from Tokio, the dispatch states.

At least 50 Americans are now reported to have perished in Tokio in spite of previous statements that no casualties among American residents of the Japanese capital had occurred. The information was officially given out by American Ambassador Woods.

Explaining the reason for not rebuilding Yokohama, Japanese officials pointed out that the recent violent earth disturbances have played such havoc with the harbor bottom of the once proud port that it would require the expenditure of an excessive amount of money to dredge the port and remove hundreds of thousands of tons of debris. For a far less cost Tokio could not only be rehabilitated, but in addition the capital city could be made into one of the finest seaports of the far east.

READY FOR GONG

Jack Dempsey Finishes His Training For the Fight.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Sept. 12.—"I'm ready now and I'll be ready for that gong Friday night," said Jack Dempsey after finishing his training here for his fight with Luis Firpo. "When I'm ready and fit to fight, I'd just as soon fight two or three men as one."

A triple spray of scarlet marked Dempsey's final workout with his sparring partners. Dempsey, in a savage mood, ripped and tore into his three foemen with extreme viciousness, and at the end of each bout his sparring partners were hanging on. And each was dripping blood from the lips, where Dempsey had jabbed and crashed them with hard punches.

TO SEEK STATE CO-OPERATION

President Coolidge for Law Enforcement in General.

TO CONFER WITH GOVERNORS

Would Make Prohibition Laws More Effective and Will Ask For Aid in Suppressing Drug Evil, Enforcement of Immigration Regulations and Other Questions That Have State and Federal Relationship.

Washington, Sept. 12.—President Coolidge plans to seek state co-operation for law enforcement in general, it was revealed at the White House.

In addition to state aid in making the prohibition laws effective, the president will ask specifically for co-operation in suppression of the drug evil, for enforcement of immigration regulations and other allied questions that have both a state and federal relationship.

These questions will be submitted to the conference of governors which the president contemplates calling this fall. No final decision has been reached as to where the conference will take place. The governors will hold their own annual conference, the meeting of the house of governors, the middle of October at Denver. The president is undecided whether to call the governors here before that meeting or immediately after.

The president believes it would be very helpful for the federal government to have the co-operation of the states in the enforcement of the laws of the United States, a White House spokesman declared, helpful both to the states and to the government.

The president has had conferences within the past week with Prohibition Commissioner Haynes, who submitted suggestions of a program for a discussion of prohibition laws with governors. The determination to include other questions will lead to a revision of this outline to include the narcotic evil.

Following the cabinet meeting the president held conferences with Secretary of Labor Davis and Attorney General Daugherty. The labor secretary is directly charged with enforcement of the immigration laws which the president plans to treat at the meeting with state executives. The actual prosecution of all law violators falls to the department of justice and it is through this department that the law enforcement agencies come in most direct touch with state officers and courts. The interchange of evidence between state and federal officials will enable both government and states in many cases to secure convictions where otherwise the case might fall for lack of sufficient proof.

WOULD CUT SURTAX ON HIGHER INCOMES

Mellon Directs Experts to Compile Necessary Data.

Washington, Sept. 12.—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon directed tax experts to compile the necessary data to enable him to go before congress with a recommendation for a reduction in the higher income surtaxes.

Mellon will urge that they be cut from a maximum of 50 per cent to 25 per cent. It is understood that President Coolidge will support the recommendation and make it an administration measure.

On good authority it is learned that Secretary Mellon has come to the conclusion that a reduction of the so-called confiscatory tax on higher incomes will not work a hardship on the less wealthy, or poor classes. Instead of bringing money into the treasury, he finds, the large incomes are being converted into tax-exempt securities at the expense of other taxpayers. By removing the so-called higher brackets, he believes, vast sums of money will be turned into profitable and taxable production, which will enable the government to bring down taxes in general much sooner.

DOINGS IN OHIO

Manslaughter Charge Likely.

Dayton, O., Sept. 12.—Lawrence Harris, 25, of Piqua, and Charles Hood of Portsmouth may face charges of manslaughter, following the death of an unidentified girl from injuries sustained in a motorcycle accident. The girl died without regaining consciousness. Hood is in jail, and Harris is at his home suffering from injuries. The girl was riding on a motorcycle with Harris when it struck an automobile driven by C. Rederbaugh, near Sidney.

To Oppose the Klan.

Marietta, O., Sept. 12.—With more than 200 members present, the first of a series of organization meetings of the American Unity league was held here. Judge James M. Morgan, president of the Indiana State Bar association, was the speaker. Announcement was made by leaders of the movement that public meetings will be held and an active campaign will be waged to counteract Klan activities.

Prisoner's Sentence Commuted.

Columbus, Sept. 12.—Governor Donahy commuted the life sentence of Weldon Wells, Kansas City, to 10 years, with three years off for good behavior. Wells will be released from the penitentiary Sept. 28. He was serving a life sentence for the killing of Mrs. Mona Simon, 25, at Deshler hotel in this city in 1917. He has been working as a clerk in the penitentiary office. Mrs. Simon's home was in Philippi, W. Va.

Big Four Men Get Increase.

Cincinnati, Sept. 12.—More than 4,000 employees of the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis are benefited by a wage increase of 3 cents an hour given by the company to its shopmen. The employees include machinists, boilermakers, blacksmiths, metal workers and carmen. The increase is retroactive to Aug. 1 last.

Beetham to Resign.

Cadiz, O., Sept. 12.—Rupert R. Beetham, former speaker of the Ohio house of representatives, who for several months has been a special assistant in the office of Attorney General Crabbe, will return to his home here to resume his duties as president of the Fourth National bank.

Takes Poison.

Columbus, Sept. 12.—Shortly after he had been served with divorce papers, Homer L. Moffett wrote his wife a farewell note in which he enclosed 70 cents, and then took poison. He was rushed to a hospital, where it is said he will recover. His home is in Sheridan, Wyo.

Falls to Obtain Bail.

Akron, O., Sept. 12.—Harry R. Anderson, former treasurer of the Warrenton Secured Discount company, has failed in his efforts to obtain bail. Anderson is charged with embezzlement. Akron investors lost nearly $800,000 in the company, it is charged.

COOLIDGE TO TAKE UP COAL PROBLEM

Would Have Fuel Available at Reasonable Prices.

WHITE HOUSE DECLARATION

President Has Already Taken Up the Matter of Increased Prices With the Coal Commission and Will Give the Commission Some Further Instruction in the Matter—Pinchot's Recommendations.

Washington, Sept. 12.—The federal government will do everything within its power to see that coal is made available to the people of the United States at reasonable prices.

This statement was made officially at the white house in response to inquiries regarding Governor Pinchot's letter to President Coolidge, urging that prompt steps be taken to safeguard the public against profiteering as a result of the 10 per cent wage increase granted the anthracite miners.

Mr. Coolidge already had taken up the matter of increased prices growing out of the hard coal controversy with the United States coal commission, and he now will give the commission some further instructions in the matter. The white house spokesman added: "The federal government will take such action as is possible to secure the distribution of fuel to the people of the United States at as reasonable prices as can be had."

Governor Pinchot, in his letter to the president, asserted that the wage increase agreed upon by the miners and operators under his auspices should in no way result in a price advance of more than 60 cents a ton. Ten cents of this, he declared, should be absorbed by the operators, many of whom could absorb the whole increase "and still make abundant profits." "In fairness," Governor Pinchot added, "the remainder of the 60 cents should never reach the consumer. It is certain, however, that this amount, and probably much more, will be exacted from the consumers unless public action is taken to prevent it."

As a practical means of taking care of a part of the increase, the Pennsylvania executive suggested that the interstate commerce commission could reduce the freight rates on the transportation of hard coal in interstate commerce. Pinchot already has ordered his state public service commission to take up the question of reducing similar rates within Pennsylvania. He also has communicated with his fellow governors of anthracite using states, calling on them to co-operate in a war against gouging.

ENVOY TO MEXICO

Coolidge Not to Make an Appointment at Present Time.

Washington, Sept. 12.—President Coolidge is satisfied with the existing status of relationship with Mexico for the time being and will not appoint an ambassador to the southern republic just now. This statement was made at the white house for the president in denial of reports that he is about to announce the appointment of R. B. Creager of Texas to the Mexico City post. When the time comes to select a Mexican ambassador, it was stated, Mr. Coolidge will confer with Secretary of State Hughes on the subject and will be guided by his recommendations. The belief prevails that no appointment will be made until after congress meets in December, in order that it may be acted upon by the senate.

FIRPO APPEARS FIT

Burn on His Right Arm Not Expected to Give Him Any Trouble.

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 12.—Luis Angel Firpo, challenger for the world's heavyweight crown, will en-train for New York late today. The New York headquarters prior to the fight will be in West 94th street.

Today the Argentine challenger displayed a fair amount of speed, boxing one round each with Frank Koebe, the speedy Brooklynite and two others. The rope burn on Firpo's right arm appeared to be healing and is not expected to give him any trouble, barring the ever-present possibility of infection.

Assassins Seized.

Lisbon, Sept. 12.—An unsuccessful attempt was made to assassinate Premier Da Silva of Portugal. The premier was leaving the ministry building when he was attacked by three syndicalists, who were arrested.

CHARGED WITH CONTEMPT

Attorney Fallon Accused in Court by His Own Witnesses.

New York, Sept. 12.—William J. Fallon, criminal attorney, charged with contempt of court in connection with his defense of Edward M. Fuller and W. Frank McGee, confessed bucketshop operators, was trapped by his own witnesses before Federal Judge Bundy. McGee, while being examined by Fallon, suddenly testified that Fallon tore up a confirmation card of Franklin W. Link, taken out of the Link folder, concerning the sale of 10 shares of stock. "He tore them up and threw them out of a window," McGee declared emphatically in answer to a question from Judge Bundy following an uproar caused by his original accusation. Fuller later took the stand and confirmed the testimony of his former partner. Fallon tried to have the testimony stricken from the records, but failed.

Quake Victims Need Clothing.

Kobe, Japan, Sept. 12.—Owing to the abundance of foodstuffs, the Japanese relief bureau has issued a statement requesting that all further contributions for the stricken region be confined generally to building materials and clothing. Among these two last items the greatest demand is for galvanized iron sheets or other roofing material, and for heavy winter clothing, especially knitted underwear made of wool or cotton, and all kinds of flannel clothing and blankets.

THOROUGH TEST MADE

Flight of the Navy's New Dirigible Witnessed by Millions.

New York, Sept. 12.—Millions greeted with upturned faces the new leviathan of the air, the navy's dirigible ZR-1, as it circled majestically around the metropolis, then sailed away for Philadelphia and returned as majestically and safely to its hangar at Lakehurst, N. J. The test was made in a stiff breeze and was a thorough test in every way. The big ship, like a great silver flying fish, appeared over the lower bay, circled the statue of liberty, then passed up the Hudson as far as Yonkers, doubling back over the Bronx, and then over the East river bridges. During the whole of its flight the ship was escorted by naval and military airplanes, which glided back and forth, climbing and diving in marked contrast to the deliberate but easy movements of the aerial leviathan.

People Demand Settlement.

Cologne, Sept. 12.—Public opinion in the Ruhr is undergoing a big change. There appears a keen desire everywhere for a settlement, but the workers are firm in their demand for the return of all expatriated rail men and their families, numbering more than 70,000 persons. The policy of the central German government in paying the workers in the Ruhr on the condition that they refuse to work has brought the industrialists to a realization that they are about to face a hard task to force the workers back to their old jobs for the same money.

EXPLAIN WHY DOGS HOWL

Scientists Declare Canine Occasionally Reverts to Savagery of His Ancestor, the Wolf.

What makes your dog lift up his nose and howl? It's the wolf in him, say scientists.

For every dog, no matter what his breed, has a strain of wolf in him, a wolf having been the far-off father of all dogs. And just as a reasonable human being will sometimes give way to primitive instinct under the influence of some violent emotion, so the best-trained dog will occasionally revert to the savagery of his ancestor, the wolf.

Exactly as a man will often raise his head in unconscious imitation of his caveman forebear, so your pet dog will at times show the instincts of his parent wolf. Watch your dog turn around and around before lying down before a fire, just as the wolf makes himself a lair; listen to him howl as the wolf howls.

The pointer is only an exaggerated instance of man's improvement on the original dog or wolf. Every dog pauses before his spring; man selected to breed from the dog which paused the longest, and so in time arrived at a dog which pointed and didn't spring at all. The greyhound is another instance; for his particular job he needed little scent and little brains, but perfect eyesight and speed. By selecting only those dogs which possessed these qualities the present type was reached. But every dog, wherever he lives or whatever use man is making of him, comes from the common source, the wolf.

Life Calls for One's Best.

To make a success of life you must be always at it with your eye on the job. Diversion will stimulate far more intensive effort, but the effort itself must have no diverting influence. "This one thing I do," says the apostle, and in doing it he wins. Keep your eye on the ball and put your best into the game.

THE WRONG ROAD

By ROSE MEREDITH

(©, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

THE fortune teller's tent was surrounded by an eager crowd of young people awaiting turn to have the future revealed.

Nancy Flair threw a passing glance at the red tent as she passed along with her tray of flowers.

Some one stopped her. "Nancy, dear, I will buy a posy before I go in to have my fortune told—I am hoping for a good fortune."

"Health and wealth?" asked Nancy tritely.

"All that, and the inevitable husband," answered the other carelessly. "Come on in, Nan, and have yours told with me—it will be heaps of fun."

"One at a time, pretty ladies," whined the gypsy's voice from an inner tent. "One at a time, and cross my palm with silver and you shall have a beautiful fortune."

"I want the truth," came Nancy's strained young voice.

"Always the truth—I dare not tell otherwise," rambled the woman's deep tones.

"You first, Elizabeth," she urged, and her friend slipped into the close shadows of the inner tent. Nancy waited in the gloomy, shrouded place. Suddenly Elizabeth burst out of the tent.

"Oh, Nan, such fun! She has told me so much of the past and she says I will never be rich, but that I shall marry a learned man with a mole on his ear." Her voice dropped to a whisper. "Of course, it's Professor Ramsey."

She vanished outside, and Nancy slipped into the tent.

"Cross my palm with silver," mumbled the old crone.

A silver quarter fell from Nancy's fingers and was quickly pouched. A greasy looking pack of cards was shut-fled and deftly fluttered into an orderly row on the ground.

"The past an open book—happy childhood—girlhood—much learning—a sweet singing voice, a joyous heart, loved by many men."

"Oh, no!" interrupted Nan breathlessly. "Only a few, a very few foolish ones—never," with a little break in her tone, "never the right one."

"Who knows the right one?" grumbled the woman, shuffling the cards again; "here is a fair man—he is rich—he has loved you a long time—"

"No, no—" murmured Nancy, "I do not like your fortune—I do not like fair men—"

"You will cross water tomorrow—you will play on green grass under blue skies—and the fair man will follow, follow you—"

Nancy groaned inwardly. She had promised to play golf with Doctor Larrabee at the club on the morrow. She was doing it just to spite Larry Corning, who had been away on a business trip and who had not returned in time for the church fair, now going on. She had written him a tiny little note reminding him of the fair—and he had not replied.

"I hate him!" she suddenly exclaimed.

"Fate conquers all—hate the fair man if you will, lady. . . ."

"No, I hate dark men," she corrected impatiently. "Hurry on with my fortune, please. The fortune—the fortune," and another silver piece was dropped on the scattered cards. The coin fell on the knave of clubs.

"Hi!" exclaimed the gypsy, "see the good omen, lady, the coin has fallen on the dark gentleman—fortune is near—a dark lover—would woo you, but you are cold to him—he has little gold—but a warm heart—just now a cloud is between you, but the sunshine of your smile will pierce the clouds—ach—ach—ker—ker—achoo!"

The stinging smoke from the burning faggots had done its work. The gypsy sneezed and disappeared in a swirl of red and yellow draperies. For an instant Nancy Flair stood entranced with astonishment, then realization burst upon her.

Larry Corning, clever Larry of the college dramatic club in his younger days, had posed as the gypsy fortune teller. Even Nancy, who knew him best, had been deceived until that inevitable sneeze had escaped. Fury shook her very heart. What had she betrayed?

She turned and fled through the thinning crowd of people. As she ran hot tears coursed down her flaming cheeks. How she hated him—how she—

Some one overtook her and folded her in flapping draperies. It was the gypsy fortune teller, now towering his six feet above her. "Ah, pretty lady," he pleaded. "It was not my fault, and I love you so—"

"Wh-wh-why didn't you tell me before?" gasped Nancy, "and besides, I have just said I hated you, Larry."

Larry stooped again and kissed her lips.

"If you hate me like this, darling, I will not ask for love," he dared to say. "Pretty lady, you will marry a poor man who loves you, and you will be happy forever after—and so will I," declared this unusual seer. "We have been traveling wrong roads, and now we are right on the road to happiness."

U. S. EXPERIMENTS
OUT COST OF GAS

Adjustment of Carburetors on Government Trucks Reduces Consumption of Fuel.

Washington.—Substantial savings of gasoline by the periodical adjustment of carburetors based on the results of analysis of exhaust gases from automobile engines are said to be feasible by the Department of the Interior following experiments made by the bureau of mines on the fleet of motor trucks used by the government fuel yard in Washington. As the result of carburetor adjustments made by gas analysis in the bureau's experiments, an actual increased efficiency in mileage and saving of gasoline amounting to 22 per cent was attained. The tests demonstrate that a portable carbon dioxide indicator for testing the exhaust gases of a motor vehicle gives a positive indication of the carburetor adjustment, removes all guesswork of such adjustment and is perfectly feasible practically.

Samples of Gas Tested.

The government fuel yard trucks tested by the bureau of mines ranged in capacity from two and a half to seven and a half tons. During the winter months, when the demand for coal is heavy, from 30 to 35 trucks are used. Samples of the exhaust gas were taken on the trucks kept in service for summer hauling in order to determine the carburetor adjustment as used. Changes then were made to a more economical adjustment whenever possible, without sacrificing flexibility of operation and power. In all but one case the carburetors were found to be adjusted too rich for maximum power and economy. Increase in Mileage Noted.

The actual increase in mileage and saving of gasoline due to the carburetor adjustments made by gas analysis when the month previous and the month following the adjustments are compared, showed an increase in mileage of 22 per cent; for the second month after adjustment, 16 per cent, and for the third month, 9 per cent. When the mileage is compared truck for truck, and not taking into consideration the distance each traveled during the month, the increased mileage equaled 24.7, 21.2 and 16.2 per cent, respectively.

The adjustment of carburetors by analysis of exhaust gas is based upon the fact that the carbon dioxide in the exhaust is a direct indication of the air-fuel ratio and completeness of combustion. In turn, the air-fuel ratio and completeness of combustion tell whether the carburetor is properly adjusted for maximum power and gasoline economy.

Adjustment Usually Rich.

Other conditions being constant, the mileage obtainable varies as the percentage of carbon dioxide in the exhaust gas and air-fuel ratio. This has been little realized by most garage men in the past. Usually the adjustment is far too rich for maximum economy. There are, however, exceptions to this rule. A determination of the carbon dioxide content of the exhaust gas while the vehicle is being operated on the road gives a positive indication of the carburetor adjustment.

The results of the bureau of mines experiments show that adjustable carburetors tend to become more richly adjusted with lapse of time, and that the adjustments should be checked at least every two months to maintain the most economical adjustments. Driving is a Big Factor.

The bureau suggests that one driver may be able to get considerably more mileage than another, due to the method of driving. The mileage is greatly increased by disengaging the clutch whenever possible and coasting. In approaching a heavy grade sufficient momentum should be obtained to carry the vehicle a considerable distance up the grade before making it necessary to change the gears.

Weather has a marked effect on the mileage obtainable. In general, a motor runs better at higher humidity and temperatures. Rainy weather decreases the mileage on account of the slippery nature of the streets; so does snowy weather.

Injunction to Stop
Woman "Making Love"

Detroit, Mich.—Judge Richter granted an injunction restraining Louise Keef, from "following, molesting and openly making love to" Joseph A. Gregg.

The two had been friends, the petition said, but for nearly a year Miss Keef's attentions had been unendurable and harassing to Mr. Gregg. She hid behind "telephone poles, garages and trees." It was charged, and came upon him unawares.

She said, "Hello, grandpa," to him a few days ago while he was talking on a corner to a young woman friend and then turned and said, "Hello, grandpa," to the young woman, according to the petition. He called police and Miss Keef was ordered to leave him alone but, according to Gregg, she refused to do so.

Only the watchfulness of his landlady caused her to fail to surprise him at his boarding house, Mr. Gregg said.

English Travel in Security. London.—Only five passengers of the 1,186,479,000 carried on English railways during 1922 were killed in accidents. This is one passenger in every 237,000,000.

THRIFT and EDUCATION

We think that "Thrift" should be as much the part of the American child's education as arithmetic, geography and spelling.

Doesn't it sound rather inconsistent to teach all the fine points about MAKING MONEY without saying a word about how to TAKE CARE OF IT after it is made.

A good way to teach thrift, is for each and every parent to see that his child, has a Savings Account in this solid institution.

Such a step will have a beneficial influence on the child's future character.

CARE OF VETERANS' CHILDREN

Government Bureau Will Co-Operate With Legion in Plan for Attention to Dependents.

Full co-operation of the children's bureau of the United States Department of Labor will be extended to the American Legion in the plan for care of dependent children of World war veterans. This assistance to the program of the Legion on a problem which Legion leaders believe will eventually approximate care of disabled, will be rendered in every possible way, according to Miss Grace Abbott, chief of the children's bureau, in charge of welfare work for the government.

Miss Abbott has clearly outlined to George A. Withers, chairman of the Legion's national committee on children's homes, her ideas of what the veterans' organization should undertake in this work. In the first place, Miss Abbott says that every effort should be bent toward keeping the children of the Legion whose fathers have died, or are incapacitated, with their mothers or near relatives who are willing and competent to care for them. Miss Abbott declares that in the past it has been a common practice to take away children from the remaining parent if means are insufficient to care for the dependents. Usually, according to child welfare workers, this operates adversely, causing a double loss to the child. Sometimes a mother is allowed to struggle on under a load obviously too great for her shoulders, and the family becomes demoralized—sometimes delinquent. Here, thinks Miss Abbott, is where the Legion posts may help in this portion of the problem by friendly help and care, and by lending assistance in the schooling.

Miss Abbott says that foster homes are generally regarded as better than institutional, if children must be taken from their parents or relatives. "Such an institution," declared Miss Abbott to Chairman Withers, "should be the last resort after every effort has been made to keep the family together, rather than the beginning of a program. If you could get every post to report to the state department, and in turn to report to national headquarters as to the success in caring and providing for these children, helping families to remain together, in finding ways of providing scholarships for the education of the children, etc., then finally as to the institutional care which may be necessary, I think you would make sure that the Legion children were having the right kind of opportunity for home life, for special care, if physically defective in any way, and for education, which is their right."

The government welfare worker holds that members of the Legion who are to handle this vital problem for its members should be named from the ablest men in the organization, and that they should approach the question as one which is certain to require diligent study, great expenditure of time, and much patience and ingenuity.

LONG FIGHT WON BY LEGION

Federal Judge Killits Holds Foreign-Born Objectors Not Entitled to Citizenship.

Foreign-born men who had conscientious objections against serving in the United States military and were exempted have been denied citizenship by Federal Judge John M. Killits of Toledo, Ohio. This matter has been the subject of a long and bitter fight by members of the American Legion throughout the country, and officials of the Veterans' organization were well pleased with the action denying to such men the rights of citizenship. Judge Killits, in his opinion, declared that the court was unable to see how any applicant, who, on the grounds of conscience, objected to bearing arms in his country's defense, can take the oath of citizenship without reservations and that he, as the court, was unwilling to accept any such oath with reservations to it.

"Without any intention to reflect upon the quality of the profession of conscientious objectors," declared Judge Killits, "we feel that it is enough that the country must endure the native born of that persuasion whose citizenship is a birthright without extending the number by the favor of the naturalization laws."

Many posts of the Legion have fought against granting of citizenship rights to such applicants since the close of the war, and in a number of cases, the fight has been successful. The Toledo instance, however, is believed to be the first decision of a federal court in the matter.

Ohio Is in Lead.

Ohio leads all other states in the number of local voltures of La Societe des 40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux, the "playground of the Legion," though only one-half of the state is organized. The department now has 45 voltures, with Iowa second with 37, Illinois third with 30, Pennsylvania fourth with 31, and New York fifth with 28. The largest volture of La Societe is in Los Angeles county, California, where the local membership is 316. Polk county, Iowa (Des Moines), is second with 214; Linn county, Iowa (Cedar Rapids), third with 205, and Cook county, Illinois (Chicago), with 204 is fourth. These are the only voltures which number a membership of over 200. Membership in La Societe is based on activities in the organization of the American Legion, and is selective.

CONSCIENCE FUND KEEPS INCREASING

Tax Dodgers Have Given U. S. Over Half Million Dollars.

DONATION MADE TO ROAD

Since one September morning, in 1911, when an astonished clerk in the United States treasury discovered a crisp $5 note in the morning's mail, along with an anonymous letter from a conscience-stricken converted sinner, a "Conscience Fund" has always been maintained—and well supported. The chief contributors to this fund, year after year, have somehow managed to escape the snare of the federal fowler, only to be caught later in the coils of the secret service agent commonly known as our conscience, says a Washington dispatch.

It was Franklin who said that nothing in this world is certain but death and taxes. The federal fund which is credited to conscience, and which now amounts to considerably more than half a million dollars, suggests that quite a few people try to sidestep the latter certainty only to find that the cost of dishonesty is unhappiness.

Gifts From 2 Cents to $30,000.

Amounts have been mailed to Washington ranging all the way from 2 cents to $30,000. One man returned his original defalcation four-fold in imitation of the publican Zaccheus. A London vicar once sent Uncle Sam the sum of $14,225.15, the money having been entrusted to him by a traveling American who had been converted in his chapel and who wanted to "square himself" and thus ease his troublesome conscience.

But the most recent case is rather different from any of these. A few days ago a man with a hunted look stepped up to the ticket agent at the railroad station at Uniontown, Pa., and asked what the fare was from Greensburg to Scottsdale. When told that it was exactly 53 cents he deposited two quarters and three coppers and went away happy, for, like the village blacksmith, he could now look the whole world in the face for he owed not any man. At least that was what he seemed to think, for, as he explained to the surprised agent, he had beat a conductor out of that amount just 30 years ago by failing to pay his fare at the time.

Few Feel They Owe Roads.

It is not intimated in the news dispatch that there is any likelihood of the railroad company opening a "Conscience Fund" for future credits of the kind. It wouldn't pay. There are not enough people, who patronize the railroads, who ever feel that they owe anything to a corporation which charges "all the traffic will bear." They may be all wrong in this, but their consciences seldom worry them, railroad officials say. Most people, if suddenly tempted to forward a missed fare to a railroad company, would probably do so in the manner of Bill Nye, who used to write to his creditors, "Enclosed please find $2, on account—if you can."

THOUSANDS OF WAR BOOKS

Eight Thousand Volumes Written by Americans Alone.

Americans are writing about the war and the peace to such an extent that an American room will be established when the French war library and museum in Paris are moved into permanent quarters at the Chateau de Vincennes next year. There are already 8,000 volumes by Americans, and the Museum boasts that it has one of the finest collections of American war posters.

Germans, too, have been busy writing about the war. Their works comprise 25,000 volumes. France comes next.

This institution was set up by the government to develop the work started by a wealthy Frenchman who, early in the war, began assembling war documents.

MUST SPEAK ITALIAN

Maltese Government Orders Instruction of Children in Language.

On account of a large Italian population the British naval base of Malta exhibits as many problems for the British government as does Tunis for the French government for the same reason. Although the French population in Tunis is 50,000, against the Italian population of 150,000, the Italian language is not officially recognized there and Italian schools are supported either by the Italian government or by subscriptions and fees. In Malta a new law has been approved, which makes obligatory instruction in Italian as well as in English.

In 1922, 95 per cent of the parents chose English for their children in the primary schools.

RUSSIAN GRAIN TO GERMANY

400,000 Tons Thus Far Exported, Hamburg Reports Show.

Russia has exported 600,000 tons of grain so far this year, according to statistics issued at Hamburg, where Germany has taken over two-thirds.

Before the war Russia exported about 8,000,000 tons of grain. The entire exports for this year are estimated between 2,500,000 and 3,000,000 tons.

FEW BIRDS RELY ON SMELL

Only Three Are Known to Make Use of This Sense—the Dove, Buzzard and Jay.

It is a rather curious fact that only three of the common birds seem to make any constant use of their valuable sense of smell, says the Review of Reviews. These are the turtle dove (close relative of the famous, now extinct passenger pigeon) the turkey buzzard and the famous Canada jay, common about hunters' camps in the north-eastern woods.

Hunters believe that the "whisky jacks," as they are commonly called, assemble as soon as they detect the smoke of a campfire, and the latter has seen them coming from a distance, in the deep forest where a campfire had been kindled, to watch the builders of it, and steal any "grub" they could find. They are as "bold as brass" about this operation, as the hunters say. The present writer has had them pilfer bacon he held in his very hands, in the Canadian woods.

The buzzards gather freely wherever carrion is displayed. They are valuable as scavengers, and are protected by the laws of several states. Their aerial movements often reveal the whereabouts of a dead horse or cow, on which they gather for a grand feast. This is plainly the result of the operation of their sense of smell, which must be preternaturally acute. They are never seen to attack any creature that shows a sign of life, but they will sit around, gravely silent, and watch an expiring cow until she is quite dead, and then descend for their feast, which is a ravenous one and thoroughly completed.

There are plenty of visible evidences that these birds actually do rely upon their sense of smell for this work, yet the same sort of evidence seems to be lacking from the other birds who eat putrid tissue, and must know its odor. The northern trappers hate this feathered robber, which they often find and clutched in a trap they had carefully set for a mink or other fur-bearing mammal. If a Canada jay, or a buzzard finds such a trap, he is pretty likely to rob and spring it, and it is little satisfaction to the trapper to find the lifeless bird in the trap's jaws.

USE INDIAN CANOES IN ITALY

American Craft Become Popular and Are Manufactured in Large Numbers.

The American Indian canoe, which for centuries has plied only the streams and lakes of the North American continent, has at last found its way to the classic "yellow Tiber." Canoeing has become a favorite river sport of the Romans. On Sunday a dozen or more of the frail Indian craft can be seen in the yellow waters gliding along the shores in company with skiffs, shells, sculls and motor boats.

The graceful Indian water conveyance has become so popular that an Italian firm has commenced the manufacture of them. They took several American canoes as models and then began turning them out by the scores. A canoe club also has been organized, and many Americans have joined. Paddling to the perfection of the Indians has not yet been achieved. The Romans make vain efforts to keep the canoe headed straight but a change of paddles is necessary after every few strokes.

Worst Hurricane on Record.

The most terrible cyclone of modern times was probably that of October 10, 1780, which has been specially named "the great hurricane."

Starting from Barbados, where neither trees nor dwellings were left standing, it caused an English fleet anchored off St. Lucia to disappear, and completely ravaged this island, where 6,000 persons were crushed under the ruins.

After this the whirlwind, tending toward Martinique, enveloped a convoy of French transports, and sunk more than forty ships, carrying 4,000 soldiers; on land the towns of St. Pierre and other places were completely razed by the wind, and 9,000 persons perished there. More to the north, Dominque, St. Eustatius, St. Vincent and Porto Rico were likewise devastated, and most of the vessels which were in the path of the cyclone foundered with all their crews. Beyond Porto Rico the tempest bent to the northeast toward the Bermudas, and though its violence gradually diminished, it sunk several English warships returning to Europe.

Questioning the Judge.

Aunt Jinny, a Carolina negress, was a great advocate of the rod as a help in child-rearing. As a result of an unmerciful beating which she gave her youngest and "ornariest," she was brought into court one day by outraged neighbors.

The judge, after giving her a severe lecture, asked if she had anything to say.

"Jest one thing, jedge," she replied. "I wants to ax you a question. Was you ever the parent of a perfectly wuthless cullud chile?"—Everybody's Magazine.

AMUSEMENTS

Gloria Swanson has a new leading man. He is the popular actor, Antonio Moreno, who has long been one of the screen's best known stars.

Mr. Moreno plays the role of Manuel La Tassa, a young Argentine aristocrat in Miss Swanson's latest Paramount starring vehicle, "My American Wife," which comes to the Met theater tonight and tomorrow.

The story is a colorful and unusual romance laid in the Argentine and presenting the love story of a handsome young aristocrat and politician, descendant of one of the old Spanish conquistadores and a beautiful American girl from Kentucky, who owns the horse which out-races the valued track champion of the Latin nobleman.

There are many other interesting names in the supporting cast, in addition to Mr. Moreno, who in this role plays for the first time in a Paramount picture and makes his first screen appearance with Gloria Swanson.

The various other characters, the majority of which are Argentine, are essayed by such well known and talented screen players as Josef Swickard, Eric Mayne, Geno Corrado, Edythe Chapman, Ellene Pringle, F. B. Butler, Jacques D'Auray, Loyal Underwood and Walter Long, who as usual is the heavy. Some of these players have been seen in many Paramount pictures, but a few of them are said to be new on the Paramount stage.

Ostrich Feathers
on Fall Headgear

Fluffy Trimming to Hold
Prominent Place on
New Hats.

An unusual feather fancy is seen on a Caroline Reboux medium size model of black panne in cloche form, with two pompons of black and henna ostrich hanging from the side. The flues of these feathers are weighted down with spots of pasted feathers in the same coloring. Lewis uses a small poke which has the effect of being made of fish scales, but it is designed of black spangles, each one outlined by a tiny rim of brown felt.

One of the new medium sized shapes of black hatter's plush that rolls high on one side and low on the other, comes from Suzy. This is trimmed from the high side, around the back and falling over the opposite shoulder, with a thin black ostrich feather tipped in cerise and held to the hat at the high side in a large ornament of the same color galalith which is quite new in effect. A toque of black satin comes from the same maker. This has a high front cuff effect which is inlaid in a brilliant Chinese embroidery which shows much red.

A new color, which is spoken of as the lies de vin, or dregs of wine, as its name suggests, is a very lovely deep red tone. The range of shades around this tone have been combined in an entire hat by one of the modistes, either in ribbon or in silk embroidery.

Fall Hat of Black Satin, Trimmed

eries. Dark green is also very much in evidence for the new season, and all of the tones of brown are good. At the present time in Paris, quite a little navy is being worn.

Small and medium sized hats are the item for fall and, of course, everything has the short back. Velvet is spoken of as the biggest item, and there is some use of ostrich, in changeable effects particularly.

It is, however, the high-crowned hat with the small brim that is considered one of the most interesting features of this fashion talk, these shapes with small brims that may turn up on one side alone, or on both sides directly to the crown, or then again they may turn up at the back only. The trimmings which are spoken of in connection with these are swirls of contrasting velvet about the crowns, or ribbon cocardes made in novel ways; or flat loops of wide grosgrain ribbon made in a rather careless cocarde directly at the back of the crown and standing up just a bit beyond. Leather bands and feather pompons and pads are used frequently.

The latest and most attractive sport hats are yarn trimmed. Sport hats depend upon their yarn trim for chic and smartness. Even the sailor has cast aside its band of ribbon for rows and rows of yarn, wound around here and there in strands of five-yarn threads with a contrasting yarn or silk stitch.

To Renew All Chipped
and Discolored Walls

Walls that are finished with any one of the various water finishes—that is, water in which is mixed something like a colored whitewash leaving the walls tinted or colored—often show wear or rubbing or even apparent chipping off of the color where chairs or furniture have scraped against them. Without doing the whole wall over, it can be refurnished to a great extent merely by using a fine brush wet with water. A very fine brush thoroughly clean is all right to use. Wet this and shake most of the water off. Then go over the chipped and discolored places. The color from the near surfaces of the wall will again cover these whitened spots and do much toward giving the walls an appearance of having been redecorated. One housewife goes over her walls each year in this way, and redecoration is seldom needed.

For Sports Wear.

Some fascinating blouses are shown for wear with sports costumes, as much care being spent on their design as on that of whole evening frocks. One such bit of perfection is of white georgette, made with long sleeves. In front and back are panels of printed white satin, the design being Persian, and in the soft Persian colorings.

Frelinghuysen Would Stay Out.

Washington, Sept. 12.—Former Senator Frelinghuysen of New Jersey joined the chorus of Americans returning from Europe advising against the United States taking any hand in affairs over there. He called on President Coolidge at the white house. European nations were declared by the former senator to have little, if any, faith in the league of nations as a medium to preserve peace and to be equally suspicious of the world court.

Bishop Welch Safe.

Delaware, O., Sept. 12.—Friends here have had a cablegram from Bishop Herbert Welch, former president of Ohio Wesleyan university, stating that he and his family are safe in Japan. Much concern was held for Bishop Welch's safety.

Accidentally Kills Son.

DEDICATION

Muhlenberg Township Has Fine New Structure—Good Program.

The new centralized school building of Muhlenberg township at Darbyville was dedicated Friday evening, September 7. Rev. E. S. Matheny, of Columbus, gave the opening address and presented the building to the board of education which was accepted by President Milton Fullen. Professor M. C. Warren, county superintendent, then gave an excellent address on the subject, "A Golden Dream Never Dies," which was enjoyed by all. The people of our township should be proud of such a building for the benefit of its future, as well as present citizens. Refreshments were served by the Parent-Teachers' association.

TO HOLD CORFU

Mussolini's Program Causes Concern
In Britain and France.

London, Sept. 12.—The British foreign office is gravely disturbed by the news from Rome that Premier Mussolini has reiterated his determination not to evacuate Corfu until the inquiry into the Janina murders has been completed and the blame finally settled. Officials here believe that Mussolini is pursuing his present course for the purpose of delaying a settlement, because Premier Poincare of France is opposed to Italian retention of the island for fear that Italy might use Corfu as a basis in war with Serbia, which is France's ally. Unless Mussolini changes his program and tactics, Britain is hoping for the support of France in the effort to submit the issue to the league of nations.

Advice From James J. Hill.

If a young fellow doggedly bucks the world and circumstances without sense or reason all the time, he is liable to get nothing more than a sore head. He must know how to take advantage of opportunities, to use his brains; in short a young man who has no brains ought at least to have enough animal sense to find it out and learn to depend upon and get what benefit he can from people that have got brains.—James J. MARCONI DEVELOPS PLAN TO SEND CHEAP MESSAGES

Minimum of Electrical Current Will Be Needed When New Waves Are Used.

Another great step in the development of wireless telegraphic transmission has been realized, says Senator Marconi, who has returned to London after a two months' experimental cruise in his yacht, according to a London dispatch. A system has been evolved by the Italian inventor whereby wireless messages are transmitted with a minimum of electrical power, and at very low cost.

"We have transmitted messages up to a distance of 2,250 miles, not only with a very much smaller amount of power and energy, but faster and more cheaply than with the ordinary system of long-distance wireless," said Senator Marconi.

"When the new system is adopted it will mean that a power station for long-distance work can be erected at much less cost than at present. I have telegraphed on this system from Cape Verde Island, off the African coast, to London. To send messages clearly and more rapidly over those 2,500 miles took less power than a message from London to Paris by the ordinary methods."

Senator Marconi explained that these advantages were gained by the utilization of waves that have not before been used. Given the necessary mechanical element, he said, messages could be sent clearly seven times faster than the present rate, and that the public and the newspapers ultimately would have the benefit of much cheaper commercial charges. His opinion is that wireless is only in its infancy, and that the future has in store greater marvels than have been revealed in the past.

Commenting on recent experiments conducted by American inventors looking to privacy in wireless telephonic conversation, Senator Marconi said he was afraid such an achievement was still far off. "I do not say that wireless telegraphy ever will be an absolutely private means of transmission, but I will say that in the future it will be possible to make it much more difficult for any one to get messages not intended for them."

MORE OPIUM USED IN CHINA

American Professor Says Greater Amount Is Being Consumed.

China, under pressure of internal strife, has relapsed deeply into the thrall of narcotics, according to Rev. Dr. H. H. Gowen, professor of oriental languages and literature in the University of Washington, who has just returned to Seattle, Wash., from a tour of the Orient.

"Farmers in many districts have been practically forced to return to the cultivation of the poppy," said Dr. Gowen today, "because the military governors have assessed their lands on the basis of what they will produce in opium. Military governors in other districts are actually paying their soldiers in opium."

Not since 1907, when the powers made their first effort to release China from narcotics, has the habit of their use been so firmly fixed as now, according to experts interviewed by Dr. Gowen. He said that morphine had been introduced and was having an effect many times worse than that of opium, to which the Chinese had become accustomed.

HARTMAN THEATER

No picture that has even been presented in Columbus, not even "The Birth of a Nation" has been received with more enthusiastic acclaim by the thousands who crowd the theater than the much talked of picturization of Emerson Hough's great novel "The Covered Wagon" now playing twice daily at the Hartman theater, Columbus and which the management has decided to continue for another week.

In his criticism in the Columbus Dispatch H. E. Cherrington writes: "Covered Wagon is Hartman triumph. So big, so suggestive, so vital and so important we could scarcely grasp the grandeur of it all. "The Covered Wagon" will move you like a burst of sunrise or a flash of heroic banners."

Daisy H. Krier in the Ohio State Journal says: "The picture is an inspiration, a clean picture of the days in the late forties. It is worth regular theater prices."

And the critic of the Columbus Citizen has this to say: "Incomparable in its settings and unerring in every detail, 'The Covered Wagon' brings to the screen an inspiration."

Matinee and night performances are given daily, including Sunday and mail orders for next week are now being filled in the order of their receipt.

Plan Eradication of Wild Onion Crop

Practice of Fall Plowing Followed by Intertilled Crop Most Effective.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Numerous reports received from farmers who have employed the methods of controlling and eradicating the wild onion, or garlic, suggested by the United States Department of Agriculture, state without an exception that where late fall plowing has been practiced followed by an intertilled crop the next spring, the onion has been destroyed.

One farmer in Ohio reports that he has had good results in destroying the onion by thoroughly disking the land in the fall to destroy all the top growth of the onions and in the following spring giving the land thorough preparation and planting to some intertilled crop, such as corn. A Virginia farmer has had success in eradicating the onions by plowing the infested land deep late in the fall and seeding to wheat. The following summer immediately after the wheat is harvested, he again plows the land, this time shallow and seeds by soy beans. With the two years of such treatment he has succeeded in destroying all the onions.

Start Work in Fall.

To kill the wild onion, says the department, the work must be started in the fall. The object of this work is to destroy the plants, which grow from soft-shelled bulbs, before they have advanced far enough for new bulbs to form in the ground beside the old bulbs. The best time is when the plants are about 12 to 15 inches high. This is during October and November in the South, and during November and December, in the North. When the plant at this stage is entirely turned under by deep plowing, it is killed. If this plowing were put off until spring, however, these plants would have formed new bulbs, which would be able to grow even though the parent plants were destroyed. It is highly important that the tops be completely buried by the plowing; otherwise many of them would keep on growing. A plow with a jointer attached to the beam will often be a great help in turning under the tops, while disking the land previous to plowing will also aid in accomplishing this result.

The following spring the field should be planted to an intertilled crop. Corn, preferably planted in checkrows, is best. From the time the farmer is able to get on the land in the spring until the corn is laid by, his efforts should be directed toward preventing the onion from making top growth. This spring or early summer work is to kill the plants which have come up from the hard-shelled bulbs which lived through the winter. Some of these bulbs, however, may not start growth for a year or two, so it is necessary to continue giving careful cultivation for a year or two.

Cleaning Up Pasture.

Eradicating the onion from pastures, if the plants are not too numerous, may be done by digging up each plant and destroying. Sheep eat the tops of the onion, and grazing for a few years often gives the desired results. The application of poison to each plant, where it is practicable to do so, will destroy them. Coal-tar creosote oil applied to each plant at the rate of about four thumbfuls is effective in killing both the plant and the ungerminated bulbs.

Since the sowing of seed grain infested with the onion bulbets, which are about the size of the wheat grain, is one of the principal ways by which the weed is spread, it follows that clean seed should be used as a preventive measure.

Estimate of Kentucky Blue Grass Seed Crop

According to a report issued by the bureau of agricultural economics, United States Department of Agriculture, the production of blue grass seed in the Kentucky and Missouri districts is estimated at 800,000 to 850,000 bushels of roughly cured seed. This is approximately 60 per cent of last year's crop. The acreage of blue grass stripped both in Kentucky and Missouri was fully equal to that of a year ago and the 40 per cent reduction in the amount harvested was due to unfavorable weather conditions early in the spring. The report also states that Kentucky has a large carry-over of seed from last year, the amount being estimated at 550,000 bushels of rough cured seed. Adding this carry-over to the crop harvested this year, it appears that the total amount of blue grass seed available this year is fully equal to the 1922 crop.

Calf Should Be Given First Milk From Mother

The longer the calf is allowed to nurse the cow the harder it will be to teach it to drink from a pail. However, the first milk, or colostrum, has properties that normal milk does not have and which are necessary to give the calf the best start. For this reason the youngster should always receive the first milk. If it is left with the mother for 48 hours it will get enough of the stimulating first milk and may still take to drinking from a pail without much trouble. A weak calf may be left with the cow a little longer, but more patience will be required to teach it to drink.

FEET INDEX TO CHARACTER

Pedal Extremities While at Table in Restaurant Reveal Owners' Inner Selves.

Have you ever noticed people's feet while they are eating? asks the New York Sun and Globe. Best index to character available. Observation in a quick-lunch palace will bear this out. The diners carefully watch their manipulation of silver, arrangement of fingers from thumb to "pinkie," angle of head to table, and diameter of the mouth opening to receive the food.

Few pay any attention to their feet, and accordingly, there's the place where their true inner selves step out and betray the jealously guarded secret of their ego.

The man who keeps his feet flat on the floor, straight in front of him, is a rare specimen. He's a practical, hard-headed business man who stands for no nonsense and leaves a nickel tip.

The girl who sits with the toes of one foot turned at an impossible angle to the toes of her other foot is an incurable romanticist, and like as not is reading "Love Stories" while extracting nourishment from a charlotte russey sort of pastry. She'll probably leave two tips, or no tip, and start to walk out without paying her check.

A precise person, who probably whistles his s's and is immaculate in appearance, always aware of everything but never known to smile, sits with ankles daintily crossed. If the owner of the ankles is a girl, she does not betray violent enthusiasm for her food, no matter how hungry she may be, but like clockwork regulates her chewing, swallows of water and movement of her eyelashes.

The scatterbrain can be recognized in an instant. He probably has one foot wrapped around the leg of a chair and the other trespassing into territory on the other side of the table. He doesn't know whether it's his own foot or his neighbor's foot that is hurt when a chair steps on it, but smiles with equal foolishness one way or the other.

The man who crosses his legs at the knees while eating has no interest in his lunch. He eats because it's part of his daily program, but would be just as well pleased if he never ate. His mind is on the office.

Every one knows the individual whose feet are well out in the aisle, where the waiter and patrons fall over them. He's inconsiderate, a bully at home, and ready to snarl at a moment's notice.

The best of all is the tomboy sort of girl, who parks both heels on the bottom rung of her chair, and starts to sway back and forth if the waiter is slow about the order. She's a good sport and if she ever forgets her purse, the cashier will be willing to trust her until tomorrow, something that no other patron would get if he were introduced by J. P. Morgan himself.—New York Sun and Globe.

Years Added to Life.

The general effect of the emergence of women from earlier conditions it is still too early to measure with convincing accuracy, especially if the observer has not felt the weight of past restrictions. But some of the gains made are sufficiently common and obvious to force recognition. For instance, ten or twenty years have been added to the lives of women, both in active work and in enjoyment. A century ago fifteen was a marriageable age, thirty was mature matronhood and forty was old age. As to anything over forty—that was sheer senility. Women live somewhat longer than do men, but their life cycle in men's minds covered, in the past, only the child-bearing period; they had less childhood, less youth, less maturity and far more of the least desirable period, old age. Save as somebody's mother or grandmother, they ceased to be. Today they have longer childhood, longer youth, and maturity holds on steadily, with health and strength, ambition and enjoyment, well into what used to be mere fireside knitting time. The woman of fifty and onward has a wide, free outlook; many have undertaken new trades and professions and carried them on successfully. This is a great and beneficent change of status.—Current History Magazine.

All Serene.

The Florida beach and blue sea looked inviting to the tourist from the North, but before venturing out to swim he thought to make sure.

"You're certain there are no alligators here?" he inquired of the guide. "Nossur!" replied that functionary grinning broadly. "Ain' no 'gators hyah."

Reassured, the tourist started out. As the water lapped about his chest he called back:

"What makes you so sure there aren't any alligators?"

"Dey's got too much sense," he allowed the guide. "De sharks done skeered dem all away."—American Legion Weekly.

Timely.

"That certainly was a very fine sermon," said an enthusiastic church member who was an ardent admirer of the minister. "A fine sermon and well timed, too."

"Yes," answered his unadmirable neighbor, "it certainly was well-timed. Fully half of the congregation had their watches out."—Watchman-Examiner.

Something Just as Good.

"My hair is falling out," complained Mr. Riggs to the druggist. "Can't you recommend something to keep it in?" "Certainly," replied the druggist. "I advise you to get an empty box."

NEW OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

General Chauncey B. Baker, New Commander of American Legion.

Retired From Army After Forty Years of Service—Head of Embarkation Service in the World War—Graduated at West Point and Ohio State.

General Chauncey B. Baker, Columbus, chairman of the Franklin county council of the American Legion, was elected commander of the department of Ohio, American Legion, at the closing session of the fifth annual convention of the department at Springfield. The election was by acclamation. General Baker succeeds Gilbert Bettman, Cincinnati, as commander.

Other new state officers all of whom were elected by acclamation are: First vice commander, William Foulkes, East Liverpool; second vice commander, Wallace Thomas, Springfield; third, vice commander, J. E. Goodman, Ashtabula, and treasurer, John Sherman Taylor, Cambridge, re-elected.

The convention also ratified appointments of delegates to the national convention state committeemen, and district caucuses Monday.

Zanesville was chosen as the 1924 convention city.

General Baker is a native of Lancaster, a graduate of Ohio State university, graduate of West Point and a retired army officer. He supervised transportation that took Gen. "The Store That Treats You Right"

Hands across the V's-----
Variety and Value, the watchwords in Colwell & Katz's Opening display of Fall Merchandise

This store stands on the threshold of a new season with but one desire—to be of more service to more men than any other season in our career.

Yes—America is prosperous—that's true.

Merchants are optimistic—that's fine.

But here's a store that is pessimistic enough to know that all the fine goods in the world will not move unless there's genuine value behind them.

This stock of fine, bright, new goods was bought not for ourselves—but for you—and to put them into your homes we have used prices that will make you feel at home and trade at home—here.

Today then, please note that instead of saying we are ready to show the goods we prefer to put it—we are here to show not only the new creations in varieties but also a new code in Values.

The opening starts today—we invite you and yours believing that we can be of service to both.
